Why Invite Free Law Project to Speak?

Who We Are

Free Law Project (FLP) is a nonprofit dedicated to making the legal system more transparent, accessible, and accountable through open data and technology. We are the creators of CourtListener, the largest free online database of legal opinions, oral arguments, and filings—and we're innovators in AI-driven legal research, and public-interest justice tech.

Who We Speak To

- Startups & Innovators:
  We provide the open-source infrastructure and datasets that legal tech startups build on. Our talks show how open data accelerates innovation and levels the playing field.
- AI & Technology Leaders:
  With over 10 million court opinions and one of the largest legal corpora available, we demonstrate how to responsibly train, evaluate, and deploy AI in law—grounded in transparency and ethics.
- Big Law & Corporate Legal Departments:
  Through projects like RECAP and our Justice Partner Circle, we help firms strengthen their reputation, fulfill pro bono commitments, and access cutting-edge research tools.
- Legal Aid & Access to Justice Advocates:
  Our Litigant Portal, eFiling projects, and free legal research tools help self-represented litigants, pro bono volunteers, and legal aid attorneys reduce systemic barriers.
- Journalists & Investigators:
  We show how public records fuel accountability reporting. Reporters at The Wall Street Journal, ProPublica, and NPR rely on our open data to uncover stories in the courts.
- Researchers & Academics:
  Our data powers empirical studies across law, economics, political science, and sociology. We've collaborated with institutions including Harvard, Berkeley, and Columbia.

- Law Librarians & Information Professionals:
  We lead national conversations on neutral citations, PACER reform, and safeguarding open access to court records.
- Courts & Policymakers:
  We've advised courts on modernization and testified in front of Congress on the need for PACER reform—bringing pragmatic, open-source solutions into policy debates.

Why We're a Great Fit for Your Event

- Timely Thought Leadership:
  We've presented at ILTACON, CALICon, LITCon, NICAR, LSC's ITC, AALL, and more—on topics spanning AI, court modernization, access to justice, and open legal data.
- Engaging & Actionable Sessions:
  Our talks mix vision with practical tools: from demonstrating our AI-powered Legal Citator to showing courts how to collaborate with nonprofits.
- Trusted Voice Across Communities:
  Our work has been featured in The Wall Street Journal, ProPublica, Harvard Law, NPR, and national podcasts. We connect with audiences ranging from law firm leaders to technologists to journalists.

Topics We Cover

- AI and Legal Research: Ethical, public-interest AI with open data
- Court Modernization: E-filing, litigant portals, and user-centered design
- Access to Justice: Closing the gap for self-represented litigants
- Open Courts & PACER Reform: Why public access to law matters for democracy
- Journalism & Court Data: Using legal data for accountability reporting
- Funding AI for Public Good: Catalyzing innovation beyond the private market

The Takeaway

Inviting Free Law Project to your event means giving your audience direct access to national leaders in legal technology, open data, and public-interest AI. We speak the language of startups, courts, law firms, journalists, and policymakers alike—bridging them in a shared conversation about building a fairer, more transparent justice system.

To book a speaker, contact jenifer@free.law